

User Stories Example

This report contains the user stories for a system to connect people looking for a new job with employers having job offers

Questions:

- Which ones need to be precise?
- Which ones need to be broken down?
- Which ones are bad user stories?
- Which ones are “epic”?
- Are the priorities set appropriately?
- Is there any missing one?

As Alice, an employer, I would like to post a job offer.

As Alice, an employer, I would like to get a curated list of all people that could be good candidates for a job that I have posted so that I can reach out to them directly

As Alice, an employer, I would like to get a list of the people that said that they were interested by the offer so that I can look at their application

As Bob, a job seeker, I would like to get a list of job offers that match my profile so that I can apply to them directly

As Bob, a job seeker, I would like to get statistics about the job market in my discipline

As Alice, an employer, I would like the application to be user-friendly

As Bob, a job seeker, I would like to get a notification when a job offer corresponding to my profile has been posted

As Bob, a job seeker, I would like the application to work on iOS